

New York State Apple Grower Federal Aid Report

As part of the 2002 Farm Bill, the federal government allocated $94 million to aid apple growers who had been adversely affected by low apple prices in 2000. Payments from this third installment of apple market loss assistance should be disbursed by the Department of Agriculture within the next ten days. New York State expects to receive $10,966,516 as part of this program. Based on previous apple assistance allocations, apple growers across New York State should receive funding in the following amounts:
